

KIDS AT SCHOOL IN NEPAL - FLOODS EMERGENCY APPEAL

Kids at School in Nepal (KASIN) is a UK registered charity helping children from disadvantaged communities in rural Nepal to realise their full potential

The trustees of the charity do not claim expenses and all the administration is undertaken by volunteers so all the money we raise is used to provide received are used to help provide opportunities for needy children in Nepal. We don't have any office overheads nor do trustees claim any expenses.

Following the recent devastating flooding, KASIN has made contact with our friends and the projects we support in the Kathmandu Valley, Kurintar and Gangajamuna, remote from the river Trishuli All are safe and the projects themselves are unaffected.

However, there is great trauma for everyone in Nepal and many of our colleagues have loved ones and friends. In Gangajamuna we are aware of at least 15 families with missing relatives working as porters and guides in the affected regions. We hope and pray for those unaccounted for.

KASIN's response to the disaster is not going to be immediate as we do not have the expertise and resources currently required for search and rescue, emergency shelter and food/medical aid. However, we are committed to raise money for expenditure in the coming months once the needs of the communities are fully known. We have agreed to set up a project to help support the education in the Rasuwa district near the border with Tibet. Many schools have been destroyed so a huge amount of re-building will be required. KASIN sees its role as providing school libraries, equipment, books and stationery as well as offering a safe area and counselling for children who are likely to have been deeply traumatised by the horrific events.

Our Floods Emergency Appeal is designed for longer term support of the communities with whom we work to enable us to respond as the needs are identified by our Nepalese contacts who will know what is required.

Any donation will be much appreciated and, if possible, using Gift Aid to enhance its value by 25%.
